Negative Engagement: The Rise of the Hiring and Retention Crisis

The Future of Work: Yes, automation and other technologies will continue to advance and play larger roles in our professional lives. However, people will remain the key value proposition and differentiator. It is important we not lose focus on people as this perpetual technology revolution advances. How does engagement play a role in hiring and retaining great employees? There is more than one "currency" employees demand today, and it is no longer just about cash and benefits. What do employees want? Can we give it to them and, if so, are we?
